The undying story : the work of the British Expeditionary Force on the Continent from Mons, August 23rd, 1914, to Ypres, Nov. 15th 1914

Nuclear power makes an especially cognitively challenging demand on a population - it is literally the product of superior human minds, whereas dumb people can dig up coal out of the ground and burn it - so it has to go away as America becomes increasingly dull witted. It's like everything unless you know where to go and who to ask you are unaware of the work that goes on behind the scenes.
